Would cost $7 million to build

Detro eyes dump as recovery plant site

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Those familiar with it call the land, the illegal dumping and above ground storage operations going on there a "disgrace".

But that 40 acres, which now is the site of Mendrek's Dump, and nearly 90 acres more in the area, could be the location of a multi-million dollar plant in Romulus that would make salable fertilizer out of Detroit sewage sludge.

Last week, Detro Recovery of Detroit talked to Romulus City Council for the second time about its plans to build a plant in the city that could cost up to $7 million. Council took no action, but listened to what the firm proposed.

Hyle J. Carmichael, the city's industrial coordinator, said if Detro wants to pursue its plans, its next step would be to present a site plan to the Planning Commission. That body would then make a recommendation to the City Council.

Detro told council it wants 127.9 acres of land, possibly more later, on which to build its sewage recovery plant. The land is located from the C & O Railroad tracks west to a little west of Ozga Road and south of Ecorse Road about half way to Wick Road.

Detro officials said they would take Detroit sewage sludge, already processed by Detroit into semi-solid material that is odor-free, and mix it with wood chips and other materials to make fertilizer.

They indicated to the council that Romulus could realize from $150,000 to $300,000 yearly from Detro's operation. But, Carmichael said, the city must check into the legality of whether the city can accept payments from the firm.

Carmichael and Beverly McAnally, city treasurer, both said that whatever type of plant went into the light industrial-zoned land south of Ecorse would be a credit to what is there now.

Carmichael said many communities automatically resist any type of operation in which the word "sludge" is mentioned. He said the city's position now is to sit back and await word on legality of payments by Detro and see if the firm follows up on its proposal to construct the recovery plant.

He and another prominent city businessman said a similar sewage recovery plant that transforms sewage into salable fertilizer is located at Bettsville, Md. The plant is so hidden from sight by berms and greenbelts which surround it that area residents are not even aware of any objectionable operation going on inside, they were told by persons who have seen it.

Detro said its plant would employ up to 50 persons and that, if given permission to build, would follow whatever requirements were imposed by the city.

A check with the city building department revealed that Joseph A. Mendrek, owner of the dumping operation, does not have permits from Romulus, which allow the dumping or above ground storage of rubbish.

Mendrek's Dump is a dumping ground for such materials as old car bodies, truck bodies, huge piles of broken concrete, refrigerators, scrap metal of all kinds, trash and rubbish, an investigation last week showed.

Proof of dumping was seen in two large cranes which lift and transport items from one location to another. There also were thousands of wooden palettes, used by manufacturing firms as a temporary resting place for products. The scrap wooden palettes are repaired and made into usable ones at the dump.

Electro-magnets on the cranes' booms indicated that scrap metal is being sifted through to salvage the more valuable pieces.

Mendrek's Dump is located on 40 acres of land and sits on the site of the old Satterlee Dump. Underneath the present land lie acres of garbage, cans, bottles, scrap metal and other rubbish normally associated with a landfill site.

Mendrek's Dump is accessible from Ecorse Road by only one 1-lane road that is west of and parallel to the railroad tracks. At its entrance, a group of old mobile homes and shacks greets anyone who dares venture into the grounds, guarded by watch dogs.

The motley assortment of shacks is known as "hobo city", according to some townspeople.

Mendrek's 40 acres and another nearly 90 acres are desired by Detro for its plant. Further south to Wick Road lies many more acres, whose ownership is split among several persons. The rolling terrain and aspen trees are deceiving, since beneath the surface are one or more of several dumping grounds in the general area. Other dumping grounds are located south of Wick Road and west of the railroad tracks.

Although the southern portion of the entire 240-acre tract, from Ecorse to Wick and from the railroad tracks to just west of Ozga, would seem ideal for a new residential subdivision, checks by developers show that the cost of sewer or other underground utilities would be prohibitive.

The cost of cutting through concrete and scrap metal in dump grounds beneath the surface to install sewers has discouraged more than one builder.

In the near future, the City Council may be placed in the position of choosing between some residents protesting a fertilizer recovery plant in the community and a profitable operation that would transform an illegal dumping site into a modern plant camouflaged by berms and green shrubbery.

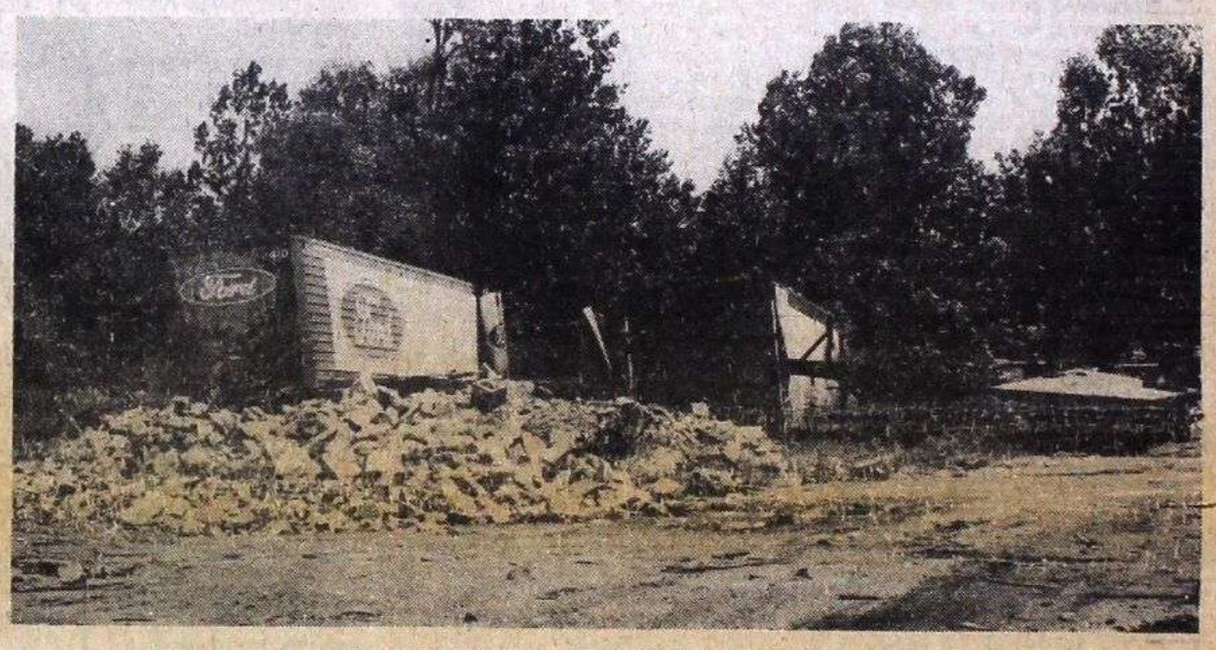
All's quiet at 'hobo city'



At Mendrek's dump

These photos show conditions at Mendrek's Dump, located southwest of the C & O Railroad tracks and Ecorse Road, in Romulus. Shown are "hobo city", where dump workers live, the two cranes which are used to move trash and rubbish, piles of scrap metal, old truck and automobile bodies, piles of wooden palettes used by the owner to make new palettes, standing water, giant piles of broken concrete and an assortment of worn out and discarded applicances. According to city building department, Joseph A. Mendrek, the owner, does not have permits authorizing dumping operations or above ground storage of trash. Mendrek's land, about 40 acres, and nearly 90 additional acres, are being considered by Detroit firm as site of sewage recovery plant that would transform Detroit sewage sludge into salable fertilizer. — ANP photos by Chief Photographer Lothar E. Cable firms make bid for '5' franchise

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Three cable television companies slugged it out in a gentlemanly fashion Thursday night as they explained why they should be awarded a franchise forr 5-area communities.

Only about 10 area residents attended the special hearing in Romulus City Hall at which the three cable TV firms were to explain and answer questions on the new entertainment and communications medium.

The five communities — townships of Van Buren, Sumpter and Huron and cities of Belleville and Romulus — are being represented by the Western Community Conference in efforts to bring cable TV to their areas in a package franchise.

On hand to discuss their written proposals for area residents and elected officials of the five communities were United Cable of Englewood, Colo.; Comcast of BalaCynwyd, Pa.; and Omnicom of Plymouth.

No decision was made following the 4-hour hearing, partly because some of the companies present and others will appear tonight before Romulus City Council at another explanatory session on cable TV.

Tonight's meeting will focus on bids of several companies for a cable TV franchise solely for the City of Romulus. Omnicom, one of the firms bidding for the package franchise for all five communities, initiated the move to get the Romulus franchise alone by asking for a special hearing before the city council.

Not to be left out in the cold, it was learned that both United and Comcast also will appear to make their presentations for the Romulus cable TV franchise. However, both firms reportedly will present nearly identical proposals for Romulus individually that were presented in their proposal for a package franchise for all five communities.

Also, it was reported that officials of United and Comcast were somewhat miffed that Omnicom would make overtures for an individual franchise for Romulus after it had sought the package franchise.

All three cable TV companies would levy similar monthly charges...

United, with 27 years in the cable TV field, and Comcast with 16, have many franchises in operation in various parts of the nation. Omnicom is a subsidiary of the communications firm, Capital Cities, and represents that conglomerate's bid to enter the cable TV bonanza now sweeping the country.

Among Capital Cities' holdings are Detroit radio station WJR and the Oakland Press daily newspaper in Pontiac.

Based in nearby Plymouth, Omnicom recently was awarded franchises in Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville, Northville Township, Canton Township and Hamtramck. However, Omnicom has no franchises actually in operation.

Omnicom this week landed a franchise with Westland.

Man charged in shooting; 3 nabbed in May 6 breakin

A Romulus man has been charged with the attempted murder of his wife and 1-year-old baby, and three out-of-town persons face charges in the breaking and entering of the Family Tack Shop in Romulus.

James W. Armstrong, 34, is being held in the Wayne County Jail in lieu of $25,000 bond for allegedly shooting his wife in the face with a .44 caliber magnum revolver on May 13 at the family residence, according to Det. Ed Lindberg of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

The detective said Armstrong's wife, Rhonda, originally told police the shooting was an accident. However, prior to her release from the hospital, she reportedly told officers her husband had shot her during a family argument.

Lindberg said the powerful handgun inflicted heavy damage to the woman, tearing away her entire jaw and severing the left ear of the baby, which the mother was holding.

Armstrong was arrested by police when he arrived to take his wife home from the hospital. He will appear for a hearing today in the 34th District Court in Romulus.

Armstrong faces charges of assault with intent to murder his wife, the same charge on his child, and possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony, Lindberg said.

Arrested and facing charges in connecting with the breaking and entering of the Family Tack Shop on May 6 are Lester Craig, 24, and his wife, Diana, both of Canton Township, and Michael Oliver, 21, of Dearborn Heights.

The three suspects are charged with breaking and entering with the intent to commit larceny and for conspiracy to breaking and entering, the detective said. They will appear for a hearing tomorrow in the 34th District Court.

Some of the estimated $15,000 in stolen merchandise reportedly was recovered from the Craig residence in Canton, Lindberg said.

Focus on Photography

By DON GREENE

In 1835, Louis Daguerre discovered quite by accident that by treating an exposed iodized silver plate with mercury vapor and then stabilizing the plate with a solution of salt he could get a visible image. At this point he set out to find a market for his new process, but without much luck.

Finally, four years later, Daguerre contacted a group of French scientists, among them Francois Arago, and solicited their help. Arago was very impressed with the process and made a brief announcement of it at the Academy of Science in January 1839.

Daguerre was able to support his research by a kind of light show he called "Diorama." This was a series of large paintings on translucent screens with controlled lights and music. In March 1839 a disastrous fire destroyed the Diorama in Paris.

Francois Arago came to Daguerre's aid almost immediately after finding out about the fire. Arago succeeded in convincing the French government to pass a bill giving Daguerre and Niepce a guaranteed pension for life. Arago was convinced it was a matter of French honor to perfect Daguerre's process before the rest of the world.

The news of the daguerreotype process spread throughout the world and was soon the rage. But when the news hit London it caused grumbling in the Royal Society of England. A respected member of the Society, William Henry Fox Talbot, was claiming he, too, had made this discovery. But just days before the press release, Daguerre had filed a patent in England.

Another Englishman also was fascinated by the daguerrotype process. Sir John Frederick William Herschel began experiments in his London laboratory. In just a matter of two weeks Herschel managed to take several successful pictures, printing a negative to make a positive paper image and then fixing the image. He had been experimenting for several years with hyposulphite of soda as a fixing agent. When Daguerre heard of the hypo he applied it to his own process adding just one more valuable dimension to the art.

Another Frenchman's name was added to the lengthening list of inventors of photography. Hippolyte Bayard set out to make direct positive images. In a very short time he succeeded with a process that involved blackening a silver chloride paper in light, coating it with a solution of potassium iodide, and exposing it in the camera. The exposing light bleached the paper which produced a direct positive image. It was then fixed in hypo. Bayard, too, went to Arago for support and recognition. But Arago was more interested in Daguerre's career so he convinced Bayard to remain in the background until Daguerre's process was publicly revealed. So Bayard's discoveries were stifled and thought unimportant until after his death.

Next week ... the calotype and albumen processes and what they meant to modern day photography.

Pets and animals

By STANLEY BARTKIEWICZ D.V.M.

Sometime during their lifetime, most dogs and cats have an infection of intestinal worms. Puppies and kittens commonly have parasites. These infections of worms may be transmitted to them before birth, or shortly thereafter from their mothers. Adult animals build up a resistance to infection of certain worms (i.e. roundworms).

The younger the animal, the more severe the signs can be with these infections. They can cause anemia, diarrhea, dull hair coat, a pot bellied appearance and death in severe cases. Scooting generally is not caused by worms.

Animals have to come into contact with an area contaminated by another animal's bowel movements in order to acquire hookworms, roundworms, or whipworms. This area may have been contaminated recently or for many months. Tapeworms must go through an intermediate host such as a flea, rabbit, or mouse; and the dog or cat must eat the intermediate host to get tapeworms. A dog does not get worms from eating candy this is merely an "old wives' tale".

Humans should avoid contact with contaminated areas. Preventing children from eating dirt will greatly help limit the possibility of exposure. Also, enforcing leash laws and prohibiting dogs and cats from playgrounds and beaches will help decrease contamination of public areas.

Pets should be tested for intestinal parasites annually. Take a small portion of your dog's or cat's bowel movement to your veterinarians. It will be examined under a microscope for parasite eggs. If the sample is positive, a specific medication will be given for the worms your animal may have. Annual testing leads to early detection of parasites and the general well being of your pets.

Sheriffs offer 3 options to solve job conflict issue

A Romulus city councilman, who also is a deputy sheriff, has been given a way out of what the State Attorney General ruled was an evident conflict of interest in holding both jobs simultaneously.

Councilman Richard K. Yeramian, now on disability leave from the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, has been given a choice of three options which he can pursue, said Sheriff William Lucas.

Lucas said a staff member last week informed Yeramian by telephone that he could resign as a deputy, request a transfer out of Romulus, or apply for a non-duty retirement.

A State Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley earlier had ruled that Yeramian would be in violation of the city charter by serving on the City Council.

Kelley said the city charter forbids an elected official receiving pay in an appointive position and that Yeramian could not legally enforce city ordinances as a deputy while serving on council.

Lucas said that if Yeramian's choice of options take him out of the area of enforcing city ordinances, he sees no conflict.

"If there is no conflict, I can't dismiss him," the sheriff said.

Lucas said he had informed the county corporation counsel by letter that he was giving Yeramian a list of options.

Yeramian had taken the position that his replacement on the sheriff's department had been transferred out of Romulus. Thus, he said, if he had returned to work, he would not be in the position of enforcing city ordinances.

In Brief

The American Cancer Society has completed its Residential Crusade, and has extended a thank you to the 345 Romulus residents who canvassed their neighborhoods for donations in April.

Mrs. Marsha Gilstaf, community chairperson, coordinated the drive, which raised $1,000.

Society funds are used to support community education and patient service programs, as well as research. Currently, the Cancer Society has more than $1 million invested in cancer research projects at Wayne State University, Michigan State University and the University of Michigan.

Principal Richard Goode has reported that four letters have been received by students at Wick Elementary School in Romulus as a result of a Michigan Week Balloon Lift.

Each child printed a message for a balloon and included the school's name and address. Four children received replies.

Goode said that both the children and teachers were surprised to find out that some of the balloons travelled as far away as Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Couples expecting a child within the next five to six months can register for Lamaze childbirth classes through the Plymouth Childbirth Education Association (PCEA) by calling 459-7477 Monday through Friday.

Classes are held at locations throughout Western Wayne County.

Cable firms make bid for '5' franchise

At Thursday night's hearing in Romulus, Omnicom in its presentation, said it had $350 million behind it to build cable TV systems. But, it was learned that the $350 million figure represents the combined worth of all holdings by Capital Cities.

Omnicom, as a subsidiary of Capital Cities, would have its own budget and be allocated a small fraction of the communication firm's assets.

In its presentation, Comcast said it had $10 million in "liquid funds" to build cable TV systems and stressed the recent spending by the firm of $5 million to upgrade and improve its largest system in the Flint area.

United Cable told the audience it had a $75 million line of credit it could fall back on to build new cable TV systems when awarded franchises. United claimed to be the 10th largest cable TV company in the nation.

In the area of total customers, Comcast said it had more than 140,000 subscribers to its cable TV services, while United said it had more than 305,000 subscribers. Omnicom will not have any actual subscribers until its first franchise begins operation, probably about August of this year.

All three cable TV companies offered basically the same type of services available to customers. These included retention of all existing local TV stations, as required by the FCC; a specified number of total channels, including specially assigned local origination channels for senior citizens, children, school board sessions, township board meetings, city council meetings, local sports events, local religious happenings and the like; premium services that offer first-run movies; and a combination package that provides channels for security systems, fire alarm service and medical dispatch system for the home.

United and Comcast both told the audience that the five area communities would be served well, if any of the three competing companies were awarded the cable TV franchise.

United said it would offer a 52-channel capacity to Western Five communities, the same as in the system now being installed in Lincoln Park by that company. Comcast, under a recent agreement with Magnavox, said it will offer a new 58-channel cable TV system.

Both United and Comcast emphasized that the rapid growth of services in the cable field necessitates a large number of channels now that can be held in reserve until new services became available.

Omnicom emphasized that the 58-channel system offered by Comcast would be outmoded in the near future and that the total number of channels was secondary as compared to the ability of the systems to handle data. Omnicom said it would offer 40 channels.

Omnicom's engineer contended that nearby Detroit Metropolitan Airport could knock out some of the channels in any system.

During individual presentations, United and Comcast reiterated that all three companies were good, but each could do the job better than the other two competitors. Omnicom's Mark Schlussel said all three firms could provide "the nuts and bolts", but that the Western Five communities could "identify" more closely with his company.

Omnicom stressed that it was in Western Five's "backyard", was committed to serving southeastern Michigan, and was not a company from out of state or another country.

During his presentation, Ed McGuire, vice-president of Comcast, mentioned that he had met an official of Capital Cities in Chicago where a project in Illinois was being pursued.

United and Comcast said they were both independent firms, specializing only in cable TV and not a part of any larger company or conglomerate.

McGuire said Comcast will offer 116 channels over and above its 58-channel entertainment system, the latter to be used for public service programming. Abe Patlove, another Comcast vice-president, said the 116 channels would be utilized to link schools, fire stations and other agencies under an intra-city and inter-city communications hookup.

McGuire also stressed that Don Ivey, Comcast vice-president, has been assigned to full-time duty in Michigan and will be stationed in a newly-opened office in Romulus. Ivey's office and his duties have no relation to the terms of a franchise that might be awarded by Western Five.

All three cable TV companies would levy similar monthly charges for basic and premium service and during initial construction would waive installation charges ranging from $15 to $25. Monthly charges would run from $7-$9 for basic services and about the same per month for premium services.

During the question and answer period which followed the meeting, the following information was brought out:

—All three companies would pay back to Western Five a sum of 5 percent of its gross revenues, including receipts from pay TV, installed later. In addition, United said it would give Western Five an additional 1 percent costs involved with operation of a cable TV advisory commission, appointed by the five communities. United stressed that the money would not be paid as salaries to commission members and therefore would not be subject to FCC regulations.

The 5 percent franchise fee given back to communities is the maximum allowed by the FCC.

Comcast came prepared with statistics showing total number of dwellings in each community, how many were occupied, and how many could receive cable TV services. The firm said its system would be in operation and completed within 18 months, with most houses receiving service in nine months.

United's Sam Street admitted that areas with 30-50 houses per linear mile were "marginal" and would get cable TV service later than more populated areas. Those with only 15 dwellings per mile might not get cable TV service for as long as three years, he said. United said it would build, activate, and have its system in operation in 12 months.

Comcast's figures also showed that 1,200 of the 1,400 homes in Belleville would get their cable TV service, 2,300 of 2,600 homes in Sumpter, 8,000-8,250 of 8,500 in Romulus, and 2,000 of 2,475 in Van Buren.

In answer to a question [illegible] Romulus Councilman Ed [illegible] the three companies explained how communities could control cable TV once it is installed.

United said [illegible] state legislation has been introduced to regulate cable TV through the Public Service Commission. The firm said the ordinance drafted by the community and incorporated into the contract is the "police power" by which the community can control cable TV service.

Comcast said the contract with the community is the police power that will control the cable TV system. Further, the company said the FCC slowly is de-regulating the cable TV industry. It advocated the best possible regulator as discontinuation of the cable TV service by the community when the contract expires.

Omnicom said local advisory commissions incorporated into the ordinance drafted by the community will be able to regulate cable TV service.

John Nolan, representing the Detroit area electrical workers union, was assured by all three companies that they would follow open bidding practices, use local union labor that is "qualified" and "competitive", and would give precedence to hiring of local workers.

Differing answers were given to Van Buren Supervisor Pat Cullin on whether the companies would offer the same prices to one community individually as it could to that same community if it were one of the five contained in a package franchise.

Her question was prompted by discussion on a question from the local press on why Omnicom and several other cable TV companies were again meeting with Romulus officials tonight.

Omnicom maintained it could offer Romulus the same franchise individually as it could in a package. But, United said it would have to re-evaluate the situation and Comcast said it couldn't be done for the same price.

Cost of a system to cover security, fire and medical emergencies would run under $20 a month for United, $15-$25 for Comcast, and $16.95 for Omnicom. United said cost of labor and materials to install the system would be $250.

Local origination studios would be built in the Western Five area, with Comcast and United saying they would build two each, while Omnicom said it would construct one. All three companies would provide a mobile TV unit, equipment and personnel and train local citizens to televise local events.

In addition to the three companies present at last Thursday's hearing, it was reported that as many as nine cable TV firms will be on hand at 7 p.m. today at Romulus City Hall when presentations are made for the Romulus franchise alone.

The Romulus Community Schools Vocational Residential Building and Construction Maintenance Class has just completed its Project House for the 1979-80 school year. The house, located at 95111 Cogswell Road, Romulus, is a 3-bedroom, 2½ bath, Early American style ranch. Senior students, completing the second year of the 2-year program, provided most of the construction manpower under the direction of Terry Bird, building trades instructor. This is the sixth house constructed by seniors since 1975. The house was started in September. Students did all of the carpentry phases, including rough-in, roofing, siding and painting. Interior work such as heating, plumbing and electrical were performed by the students under the supervision of subcontractors. The purpose of the program and the project houses is to provide students with practical training in building trades skills for future employment and individual use. The students will be on hand Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. to display their handiwork. The Open House also will provide an opportunity for prospective buyers to inspect the house. The home decorating and interior design class will feature displays of possible decorating schemes that could be used in the house. The sale of the house will be by sealed bid. The minimum bid price has been established at $63,500. Complete sales information will be available at the Open House. Further information also may be obtained by calling the Vocational Education Office at 941-2170, or the Romulus Board of Education Office at 941-1600.

School board OKs 3-year contract with Dr. Bedell

Dr. William Bedell of Livonia will begin his new duties as superintendent of the Romulus school system next Monday.

Dr. Bedell Monday was given a 3-year contract by unanimous approval of the board at an annual salary of $47,000 a year.

DR. WILLIAM BEDELL

Under terms of the contract, he will have an annual work and salary evaluation each April 1. According to Wayne Avery, school board president, the new school head will be provided with a lease car and the usual fringe benefits.

Dr. Bedell had been assistant superintendent for operations in the Livonia school system since 1973 and had been employed there since 1957.

The school board voted 6-0 to hire Dr. Bedell. Trustee Mike Woods was absent due to illness.

Marvin Fischer had been serving as interim superintendent since former Supt. James Garfield stepped down and asked for reassignment to a less demanding position. Fischer will return to his job as assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction.

Avery said that Dr. Bedell will have full authority to make whatever staff changes he feels should be made.

"As the new superintendent, Dr. Bedell will have the full support of the school board."

Out in the field

It's that time of the year when strawberry lovers big and small, young and old head to the fields for the best picking in town. With the annual Strawberry Festival in Belleville this past weekend attracting crowds, it seemed only right that many would wind up out in the fields of area growers to pick some of their own. As ANP Chief Photographer Lothar E. Konietzko found, the picking was good, and so were the berries, fresh off the plant.

Events Calendar set

It's going to be an event-full summer, according to the Southeast Michigan Travel and Tourist Association.

The 11-county regional promotion agency can prove it. They've just released their new Calendar of Events — 16 pages of information about things taking place in the close-to-home travel market.

From special bazaars, opera and dance to antique shows, festivals and fairs, the calendar is replete with listings of indoor and outdoor events. Lavishly illustrated, the booklet covers now through September.

"The calendar is the perfect companion to our new Summerfun guidebook," said Sid Baker, association president. "It fills the visitor in with the specifics of the many things to see and do here this spring and summer."

Walleye fishing is best ever in southeast Michigan

Never in modern history has walleye (pickerel) fishing been so consistantly spectacular as in southeast Michigan. Although the Lake Erie walleye boom is now well known, southeast Michigan can boast exceptional walleye fishing in its entire Great Lakes waters and connecting rivers, especially during the month of June and early July.

Ironically enough, the mercury contamination problem of some years past has been a major factor in the walleye population explosion in Lakes Erie and St. Clair. Both Canada and Michigan removed the walleye from their list of legal commercial species several years ago because of the mercury problem. This total ban on commercial netting has bolstered walleye populations over the years to the benefit of sportsfishermen.

The Michigan Department of Public Health still advises children and nursing mothers against eating the walleye from Lakes St. Clair and Erie. They advise all others to consume no more than one meal per week of walleye because of some remaining mercury found in the fish.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources in its test netting of Lake Erie waters found exceptional abundances of walleyes, plus a very healthy future outlook. A 1978 DNR post car survey indicated 281,440 walleyes were harvested in Monroe County and 62,000 in Wayne County.

Michigan has been making plantings of walleye in the Clinton River, which empties into Lake St. Clair, in hopes of establishing a walleye spawning run in those waters. This spring, test nettings revealed 28,000 walleyes entered the lower Clinton River, indicating a successful spawning run in Michigan waters is now likely established.

After spawning in the spring, walleye move out over the southeast Michigan waters system, especially migrating to the shallow waters of Lake St. Clair (Anchor Bay) and Lake Erie. As the summer progresses, the walleyes gradually move into the cooler channels of Lake St. Clair and up the St. Clair River with some moving into Lake Huron. In the other direction they descend into the Detroit River and eventually into Lake Erie.

June and early July are peak times for Michigan's waters of Lake Erie. Brest Bay, near Sterling State Park north of Monroe, is a particularly good spot for walleyes.

Since the Michigan waters of Lake Erie are relatively shallow (less than 30 feet), the walleyes move eastward later in the summer into the deeper, cooler waters bordering Canada and Ohio.

The Southeast Michigan Travel and Tourist Association's Outdoor Guide provides complete information on harbors, public access points, tackle shops and campgrounds near Lakes St.Clair and Erie and the connecting rivers. State ed board trims scholarship amounts

The State Board of Education has announced that state scholarship awards for the 1980-81 school year will be reduced $250 each in order to provide financial assistance for an additional 6,000 college students.

A state board spokesperson said the across-the-board reductions are necessary because next year's appropriations for the program are expected to be increased by less than one percent while the number of eligible recipients is up a record 25 percent.

During the current school year (1979-80), state scholarship awards ranged from $100 to a maximum or $1,200, based on financial need. Next year, the maximum amount will be $950.

The board spokesperson said approximately 18,000 students have received state scholarship awards totaling $15.6 million this year.

"Due to a variety of reasons, the number of eligible scholarship applicants for 1980-81 has increased by approximately 25 percent compared to last year," the spokesperson said. "Approximately 25,000 students are eligible for state scholarship awards during the 1980-81 school year, and these awards would total $26.7 million, if the $1,200 maximum was paid to qualifying students."

The Governor's Office and legislative leaders have informed State Board of Education Staff that state scholarship appropriations for the 1980-81 school year will be about the same ($15.7 million) as they are during the current school year.

Several alternatives were considered before it was decided to reduce all awards by $250. One alternative was to continue paying the current year maximum award of $1,200, but this would have resulted in the elimination of awards to about 6,000 students.

The state scholarship program was established by the Michigan legislature in 1964. The program provides financial aid to students who score high on the American College Test (ACT) and demonstrate financial need. Recipients may use state scholarships at public or private colleges in Michigan.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 25

Read Matthew 25:41-46

"Anything you did not do for one of these, however humble, you did not do for me." (Matthew 25:45 NEB)

Someone called in the late evening to tell me that a young man was seeking shelter in the church buildings. He had been thrown out of his home, and for the last two nights he had slept outside. On the third night, seeing a light and finding an open door, he thought he would spend the night in the church.

I did what I could. I rang the Salvation Army — they were full. I rang the Cyrenians, the Addiction Center, and the Council Reception Center, but the answer was the same.

I put on my coat and went to the church to share my bad news with him. He stood up, shook his head, thanked me, and went off into the night rain.

When I told my wife, she said: "We have a bed made up. We have clean pajamas. We have warm blankets. Why didn't you offer him a bed for the night? Why not go out in the car and bring him back?"

I replied that he could be anywhere by now and that I had little chance of finding him.

I went downstairs and read my Bible lesson for the day. It was the story of the good Samaritan.

PRAYER: Father God, by creation You have made all people brothers and sisters. Help us to recognize You in the needs of others, and to hear Your voice in their cries for help. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: How will I respond to the needs of others.

Fuelgas Declares Price War!

Fuelgas helped pioneer the portable gas grill business in Michigan. We have always sold quality and serviced what we sold. Now other large merchandisers have moved in on the gas grill business.

Because of the large number of requests for replacement parts on grills purchased elsewhere, we know there are many dissatisfied first time gas grill purchasers. To save our industry from receiving a "black-eye," we are attempting to bring the gas grill business back to the gas grill specialists and are cutting the price on a quality grill.

FUELGAS IS SLASHING THE PRICE ON THE AMBERLIGHT SPORT MODEL GA-20-1 TO $79.00 UNTIL JULY 4.

This grill has a 20,000 BTU input burner with a one-year warranty. It's 252 square inches of cooking area gives you more than adequate space for most of your cooking requirements. Unlike many inexpensive models, an electric rotisserie can be added. Truly a quality grill.

For your convenience, we have extended our hours for this sale to 8:00 p.m. on Friday, June 27 and 6:00 p.m. on Saturday, June 28. We honor Master-Charge and Visa.

County's crisis committee presents austerity plan

A 10-point austerity plan, presented by Wayne County's Financial Crisis Committee recently, is the first step in obtaining approval from Lansing to borrow $22 million on tax anticipation notes, according to Commissioner Alex Pilch, chairman of the panel.

The committee passsed on eight of the suggestions for further action before the Ways and Means Committee and killed two plans, one calling for layoffs of all nonmandated employees effective July 15 and another to reject all pending requests for supplemental appropriations. A third proposal to institute a 25 percent across-the-board reduction of all other departments to eliminate a projected $19 to $22 million deficit was amended to affect only those departments with six or more employees.

"It appears the plan calling for department cutbacks will be the key factor in convincing Gov. Milliken's office of our sincerity," Commissioner James Rashid pointed out.

The plan to layoff all nonmandated employees, leaving only those providing services for courts, the sheriff, etc., which are required by the state, was quickly rejected when the county's fiscal advisor Edward Bobowski and representatives from the county's Board of Auditors told committee members that any such action would result only in a "negative savings."

"That's what I'm getting at," Pilch replied. "That illustrates to Lansing that even if we laid off every county employee not mandated by the state, we'd still be short of funds."

Under a proposal by Commissioner Paul Citkowski, department heads will report to standing commitees having jurisdiction over their operations and submit a plan for reducing their costs. All reports are to be completed and ready for consideration by the Ways and Means Committee July 15.

Other proposals submitted by Pilch and passed on for further study included a request by all bargaining units to defer cost of living payments, eliminate all conference travel except those necessary to raise funds for the county; rescind liberalized parking reimbursements, pursue legislation that increases statutory fees for county services; pursue changes in tax abatement laws; pursue with vigor legislative authority to collect increased millage in December, if voters approve tax allocation proposals on November's ballot; and to convene the board of commissioners to adopt this program.

Despite an objection by Pilch to consider any other items on the committees' agenda "because they only mean an increase in the projected deficit," Samuel Turner, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, attending the meeting, insisted that "there are some matters that must be considered."

"I don't feel like being a part of any more games," Pilch said. "Our prospects for borrowing are nil unless we can come up with a responsible program. To continue to approve appropriations from insufficient accounts will add another $10 to our deficit ... I refuse to be a part of this."

Insisted Turner: "We have priorities that cannot be overlooked."

Crisis Committee members working for the agenda recommended for consideration a $2.7 million appropriation for adult probation payments which was returned to committee last month to determine a source of funding; a jailer training program; and an arbitration award with Local 1917 (police command) amounting to $55,570 annually. Passed on without recommendation was a request for purchase of five Metro narcotic squad cars, and settlements of a series of lawsuits.

EMU hikes tuition

The first tuition increase in two years was approved by the Eastern Michigan University Board of Regents at its regular monthly meeting June 18. Undergraduate resident tuition increased 14.2 percent, based on 31 semester hours plus all required fees.

The increase in tuition rates and estimated enrollments for next fall will provide $14,557,399 in student fee revenue in 1980-81, an increase of 13.4 percent from 1979-80. The tuition increase adopted by the EMU Regents will reverse the trend of the last several years in which revenues from tuition and required fees have provided a reduced proportion of support to EMU's General Fund operations.

Tuition rates for undergraduate Michigan residents will be increased from $26 to $30 per credit hour, while rates for graduate students who are residents of Michigan will be increased from $39 to $42 per credit hour.

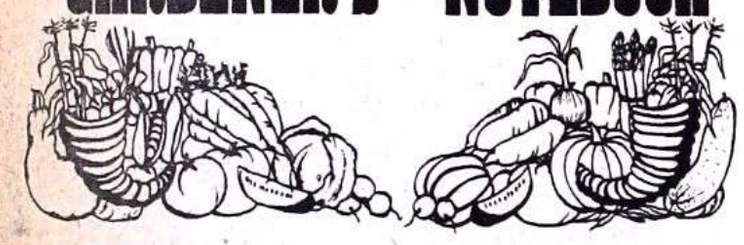
Rates for non-resident undergraduate students will be increased from $65 to $75 per credit hour while non-resident graduate students, who now pay $95 per credit hour, will pay $105 per credit hour.

In a comparison of relative increases in costs at 12 Michigan colleges and universities, University administrators noted the comparative change since tuition was held constant at Eastern in 1979-80. The average 2-year increases for Michigan colleges and universities compared were 10.2 percent for resident undergraduate tuition and 9.71 for resident graduate tuition. Comparable increases at EMU were 6.8 percent and 3.5 percent.

University officials noted Eastern will rank in the lower quartile of all state colleges and universities for total academic year costs despite the tuition increase.

The EMU tuition increases will be effective with the beginning of the 1980 fall semester.

GARDENER'S NOTEBOOK



Basic gardening needs are few and simple. Once you have a garden spot — whether it's a plot of ground or a row of windowboxes — all you really need are seeds and plants, water and sunlight, and a few basic tools.

You can spend thousands of dollars on fancy powered equipment, of course, but you don't have to. Two or three basic tools picked up at a garage sale or auction can do very nicely.

Lee Taylor, Extension horticulture specialist at Michigan State University, lists the essentials as a hoe, a spading fork or spade, plant labels (purchased or homemade), stakes and string, a hand trowel or other utensil for digging holes for transplants, and a hose or pails for watering.

The hoe is a multipurpose tool, Taylor points out. It's most often used to make furrows and chop weeds. It also can be an instrument for pest control. Grubs, cutworms and tomato hornworms are readily controlled by a properly placed stroke with a hoe. If you use a file to mark your hoehandle at six-inch intervals it becomes a handy measuring tool, too.

A spading fork or spade is needed to turn the soil before planting. A fork also can be used to dig potatoes. You can make spading a large garden more manageable by spading up only the section you intend to plant on any given day, Taylor suggests. An alternative is to have the site plowed and dragged or rent a rototiller for a day. Owning your own tiller for preparing the garden site and cultivating and incorporating mulches into the soil is convenient but not necessary, Taylor points out.

Small holes for transplants are easy to make with a hand trowel. It's also handy for tamping down the soil over a row of freshly planted seeds.

Stakes and string are the traditional row markers. If it's not critical that rows be perfectly straight, you may decide to dispense with stakes and string as guides and mark rows by planting a few radish seeds along with your main crops. The radishes germinate quickly and mark the row for you. Because they also mature quickly, they're out of the way before they begin to crowd the other crop.

Seed packets impaled on stakes can be used to identify the various crops, but they tend to become unreadable after a while. You lose not only the identity of the crop in the row, but also all the valuable information on planting, growing and harvesting that appears on the backs of the packets. Purchased plastic labels or strips cut from plastic milk bottles can be lettered with a china marker or grease pencil and placed in the rows.

Even though you mark your rows carefully, take the time to draw a map of the crop placement in the garden, Taylor suggests. This will take the mystery out of the garden, if markers are moved or stolen. It also will serve as a guide to crop rotation next year. Moving crops around so that closely related plants don't follow one another in the same spot is an important part of home garden disease control, he notes.

In most home gardens, a simple hand-powered duster or sprayer or a hose-end sprayer should be adequate to apply pest control materials. Do not use the same sprayer in the vegetable garden that you use to spray weed killers in the lawn, Taylor warns. Herbicide residues are very rough on vegetables, especially tomatoes.

Even a small garden is easier to water with a hose than with pails. Soaker hoses and lawn sprinklers make the task easier yet. Taylor cautions that watering equipment that wets plant foliage should be used early in the day so that the foilage can dry off quickly. Leaves that remain wet for long periods of time are most susceptible to invasion by disease organisms, he explains.

Probably the most convenient way to water the home garden is with trickle irrigation, a water-saving system that delivers small quantities of water directly to individual plants or along rows. With trickle irrigation, you use less water more effectively than with overhead sprinkling or a hand-held hose. Start-up costs are higher, of course, and installation takes some plumbing.

Garden catalogs and hardware stores are full of dozens of other types of gardening tools and equipment that you might find useful and convenient. Taylor suggests, however, that you start with the basics and see whether there's a need these tools don't fill. Then you can look knowledgeably for just the right gadget to do what you want to do.

For safety reasons, Taylor does not recommend using a garden rake.

"Except for leveling the soil after you've turned it, a rake doesn't have many uses in the garden," he says. "Consequently, it spends most of the time lying on the ground, waiting for someone to trip over it or step on the tines and flip it upward to hit someone."

Five generations

Dr. Ray Elwart, of the Romulus Chiropractic Clinic at 37511 Huron River Drive in Romulus, is a very special person to the Bondie family (above). Dr. Elwart has made spinal adjustments to "five generations of Bondies," starting with great grandmother, Lillian Bondie (second row, right) and her daughter, Mrs. Erma Ijames (second row, left) and her daughter, Beverly Beaudrie (first row, at right) and her daughter, Wendy Sue Kobrzycki. Now, Dr. Elwart has another member of the family as a patient. She's Mrs. Kobrzycki's infant daughter, Jennie Lynn. "They are a very health-conscience and family-orientated group," Dr. Elwart said. "I have enjoyed helping them and having them as my patients."

High interest rates blamed

Housing construction down

Local units of government in Southeast Michigan issued building permits for some 6000 fewer housing units during 1979 compared to 1978 according to a report recently published by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG).

This decline was a drop of almost 23 percent in new housing activity in the seven-county area.

The report, entitled Residential Construction in Southeast Michigan — 1979, shows that almost all of the decline occurred in the number of detached single family dwelling units authorized, down over 29 percent, while the number of multi-family dwelling units authorized by local governments remained relatively constant from 1978 to 1979.

Six of the seven counties reported overall declines in the number of permits issued, with both Oakland and Macomb counties reporting declines of slightly more than 1900 permits.

"One reason for the decline in housing construction is the continuing high cost of home mortgages," said Justine Barns, chairperson of SEMCOG's Housing and Community Development Advisory Committee and Westland city councilwoman. "Families simply cannot afford the high interest costs and high down payments.

...'Families simply can't afford them...Mrs. Barns

"The number of permits issued in 1979 for multi-family housing stayed about the same compared to 1978 because much of that construction is financed, or the mortgages insured, by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development rather than through the private sector. Also, the inability of families to obtain moderately priced single family housing has increased the demand for multi-family units," said Barns.

"It is a frustrating situation for those persons who are looking for single-family housing. At SEMCOG, we're trying to keep track of the problem and encourage federal and state government to provide whatever assistance they can in accordance with the seven-county housing plan adopted by the Council," Barns said.

While other parts of the region were posting declines in the number of permits issued, the city of Detroit and Monroe County showed increases in the total number of new housing units authorized. During 1979, Detroit issued permits for new housing units, an increase over 1978, and Monroe County permits for 18 more housing than in 1978. The increases are result of growth in the numbe multi-family housing authorized in those commun

Farmington Hills issued greatest number of new ho permits in 1979, authorizing struction of 1622 new dwelling u Rounding out the top ten munities were: Clinton Tow (1299), Avon Township (840), D (781), Shelby Township Canton Township (721), Bloomfield Township (705), (693), Livonia (641), and Ster Heights (628).

What Is The Hospice Movement?
In the United States most Hospices are specialized departments or units in a hospital which provide emotional and spiritual support as well as medical services to the terminally ill. These units are staffed by a team of doctors, nurses, psychiatrists and other professionals specially trained and experienced in the matters of death-and-dying. The services provided are not only for the patient but are also available to the families in order to help them learn to cope with their difficult situation.
Sandol Stoddard, author of "The Hospice Movement," states "Dying is a perfectly natural thing. There is nothing wrong with it. But dying, like birthing, requires some assistance."
The emphasis on hospice care is in encouraging families to care for a dying person at home in their familiar surroundings rather than in a hospital where the emphasis has to be on cure.

Keeping business, industry at home

Is there any state in the Union that doesn't fear the loss of business and industry to a neighboring state?

Keeping the precious tax base at home where it belongs, where it can generate revenue, was the purpose of passage of two state laws — Act 198 and Act 255.

Act 198 pertains to industry, and allows cities to give a tax break on new construction, and this device has been widely used in Michigan cities.

Act 255 allows cities to give tax relief (but through a different mechanism than Act 198) to commercial businesses that expand or improve the existing building.

We believe both devices are useful and beneficial both for the businessmen and the city concerned.

Some cities have been handing out these tax abatements for some time (the City of Westland is a good example); others are just beginning to make use of them. We're pleased to see that the City of Wayne has taken a first step along those lines with establishment of a policy on how to handle Act 255 applications. The council was reacting to the first request that came from a Wayne businessman asking for the tax relief on a business improvement.

Now that the city has broken new ground and granted the first tax abatement under Act 255, we hope to see many more applications coming across the council table.

Act 255 allows a city to freeze the SEV (State Equalized Valuation) on a businessman's property, and doing so, it in effect leaves the improved or expanded portion of the building untaxed, for a certain number of years. The law allows up to 12 years.

The Wayne Council set up a policy that grants six years freeze on the SEV.

The decision over the recent Wayne applicant, William Burton, was particularly important for several reasons. It was the first application, for one thing. Therefore any decision of the council could be considered precedent-setting.

It was an opportunity for the council to actually DO something to encourage business improvement in town, after giving a lot of lip service to the importance of revitalization of the business districts.

And perhaps most important, this first application may set some other minds to thinking about improvements in their businesses. The act, after all, was designed an an incentive to businessmen.

The council did not go the full nine years in handling Burton or in setting its policy by which other business applicants will be guided. The law allows 12 years, and the city decided that six would be enough, at least until the policy is reviewed in a year.

We think that's fair. What is important is that the council did act positively. And if they find that no other applicants surface, perhaps they should consider extending the policy to 10 or even the full 12 years.

But we feel they've taken a step in the right direction.

There's dire need for adult foster care homes

By MARGARET F. ANZINGER
Michigan Department of Social Service

Adult foster care homes for the elderly and physically impaired are in extremely short supply in far western Wayne County communities, a recent Wayne County Department of Social Services survey reveals.

In the communities of Belleville, Canton Township, Inkster, Romulus, Sumpter Township, Wayne, Westland, Van Buren Township, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, there are only 31 licensed adult foster homes with 176 beds, according to the WCDSS survey.

However, there are a total of 11,022 persons 65 years of age and older living in these communities, 1970 census figures reveal.

Foster care homes and number of beds in the far western Wayne County region are as follows: Belleville, five homes with a total of 30 beds; Canton Township, one home with two beds; Inkster, 15 homes with 65 beds.

Also, Romulus, one home with 4 beds; Sumpter Township, no homes; Wayne, three homes with 20 beds; Westland, three homes with 19 beds; Van Buren Township, one home with six beds; Plymouth, two homes with 30 beds, and Plymouth Township, no licensed adult foster care homes.

Adult Foster care homes offer alternative living situations for elderly and handicapped adults, 18 years of age or older, who do not need nursing home care. With some supervision and room and board care, residents of an adult foster care home can retain some independence and remain in their own communities.

The WCDSS survey shows that out of a total of 324 licensed adult foster care homes in Wayne County, 276 or 96 percent are in the city of Detroit. There are approximately 3,500 residents of adult foster care homes in the county and 3,290 of these residents live in Detroit.

WCDSS officials point out that one person in 20 may need special foster care during his or her lifetime. Community-based care allows the resident to retain a normal living situation in a home-like atmosphere, close to friends and relatives, these officials say.

Adult foster care homes offer protection from inappropriate living conditions and physical or financial exploitation, they added. Foster care homes also cost far less to operate than nursing homes or homes for the aged and provide an option to placement in these facilities.

For the person operating the adult foster care home, WCDSS officials note, the program offers the opportunity to earn money in his or her own home while providing a needed service to people of the community.

The adult foster care home provider offers a family-style living situation in his or her licensed home, assists the aged or disabled person with daily living skills and provides 24-hour supervision of medical and financial needs.

Wayne County residents interested in providing adult foster care should call Aubrey Berenstein at 876-6384.

The Other Side of the Meridian

Strange, isn't it, how one word, a song, a column, an insignificant object will sometimes trigger a long-forgotten period in our life.

Stored for our pleasure and displeasure, the mind seems to have no limitations or bans on its housing policies. Memories — good or bad — make us human.

A couple of weeks ago a column about "The Class of 1930" caused a ripple of phone calls about the past ... do you remember when horse-drawn milk wagons were as numerous as cars? Do you remember Schoolboy Rowe? Or when Ford, that's Henry Ford, paid ya $12 per week to work in his Highland Park plant?

And it went on and on and on.

"My father used to have to pay the Poll Tax," said Everett Welt, whose family lives in Sumpter. "Bet you don't know what that is."

A Poll Tax? That's what the southern whites put on the blacks so they wouldn't vote, right?

"Heck, they had Poll Taxes in Massachusetts back in 1919," Welt continues. "And Massachusetts is north of the Mason-Dixie line, isn't it?"

Welt produced a copy of the 1919 Poll Tax for the Town of Saugus, Dr., Saugus, Massachusetts. The document stated that the tax was $2.00.

"It cost the people back then $2 for the right to vote," Welt said. "And people nowadays apparently don't realize that voting was a privilege granted to those who had property and the wealthy.

"When I read in your newspaper that only 20 percent go to the polls to vote for a school election, maybe something is needed to shake up the residents."

Harold M. Welt, Everett's father, moved his family of five from Massachusetts to Michigan in that year of 1919 and settled in the Van Buren and Pelham Road area. A carpenter, Harold went to work for Ford in Highland Park, but soon became disenchanted with factory life and opened a gas station on Wayne and Ecorse roads.

"There were about 500 people in Sumpter at the time," Everett said, "and I grew up in New Boston. There wasn't a high school then and we went to a two-room school. By the time I got into the eighth grade there was no one else in the grade.

"Speak of discipline, well ... I remember a red rubber hose that the teacher would use, and I mean use. I'll never forget those days. Life has certainly changed."

It certainly has. Welt recalled that "in those days one of the biggest thrills was to go to Navin and watch Schoolboy Rowe pitch. And, of course, we would glue ourselves to the radio to hear those games in the summer time.

"And we were outdoors more than we were indoors — today parents stick their kids inside by the TV set and leave them there for hours. Then they wonder 'where they went wrong.'

"Today, you pay for someone to entertain you, but in those days we used to find entertainment out of doors."

Married for 36 years, Welt and his wife, Shirley, have managed to raise three kids.

"Do you know what another one of our thrills was in those days? It was to take a short ride to the Shaffer's movie house in Wayne, watch a movie and enjoy an ice cream cone.

"I don't think children today will ever realize how beautiful those times were. I think people just want to accumulate more and more things, and I've found the more you accumulate, be it an individual or a family, the less happier and disenchanted you become with life."

Candidate sets the record straight

Two weeks ago the Enterprise Roman ran an announcement article regarding candidates running for Van Buren Township political office. In the article, misleading information was mentioned about my political past which I feel is damaging to my personal credibility. Even before I read the article stating I had already run for the Township supervisor position in the past, my phone was ringing off the hook with inquiries. I want to take this opportunity to set the record straight about my past political involvement and my present intentions.

I have never before this year run for the office of Township Supervisor. I did run for the office of Trustee in 1974 and in 1978. I don't know how the point came up that I was previously a candidate for Township Supervisor. I wish the information had been checked on by your reporter before it made the newspaper.

I am not a politician. I am very basically a seriously concerned citizen of Van Buren Township, a "grass roots" candidate. I have been married for 36 years, have four children and nine grandchildren. I have observed the political scene in this township during my 34 years of residency. During all of those years I have very successfully managed my own business. For those who might think I need the Supervisor's job to earn a living, my bookings are six months in advance. I have plenty of work to keep me busy.

My main concerns are the problems which have come to bear on our township, my neighborhood and friends.

I ran for the office of Trustee in 1974 and in 1978 because I felt I could offer positive solutions to those problems. I couldn't stand to see candidates run unopposed.

In 1974, I filed as a candidate for the office of Trustee, but never campaigned. Somehow I missed being elected by a mere 90 votes. I was amazed that I could come so close without even trying. I felt Van Buren Township residents were behind me and ready to support me.

In 1978, my friends convinced me to run again for the Office of Trustee, but my personal business commitments kept me from campaigning and from getting my message to the people the way I would have liked to.

I've heard some criticism, about myself for switching from the Democratic ticket to the Republican ticket. Let's clear the record. I did not switch. I supported a Republican because I felt he was the best person for the office.

I'm not the typical "party" man. I want to help my township NOW, when it needs it the most. I know how to work with people, not against them. I've worked with many residents and their children in the Van Buren Township Little League Association as manager for 10 years and executive Vice President for two years. I'm concerned for the welfare of the Township. This is where we live. The many problems which face us are degrading our quality of life. The current Van Buren Township administration does a lot of talking, writing, discussing, meeting and proposing ... but never produces results or real action.

The latest hot issue before the Township Board is whether fishing should be permitted on or near Belleville Lake's bridges. The Board was content to ignore residents' complaints at first, but as fervor and pressure increased, the board decided to appease the complaining constituents. The residents who live near the Denton Road bridge attended the Township's most recent Safety Commission meeting, convincing the commission that they had a problem. Non-resident fishermen were causing safety problems, traffic congestion, yelling obscenities, etc. Somehow, the Township Board managed to convince the irate residents that the solution could be handled by an advisory vote. This was a typical "pass the buck" political maneuver enabling the Board to shirk its responsibility for which it was elected.

The controversial subject placed on the August ballot would take the "monkey off the Board's back" and send the responsibility back to the people. This is a typical example of the present Board's lack of action.

The most recent Enterprise article on this very subject ended by saying the next step on this issue is enforcement. Enforcement is the area in which the Board constantly drops the ball. Meetings, talk, ordinances, discussions, meetings, hassle, more talk, more meetings, but never real action. Never real results. We have to solve this problem once and for all along with other serious Township problems. How far will the airport expand? What is really being buried in the I-94 Service Drive dump? Do "No Fishing, Parking, Loitering, Swimming" signs really mean that?

Are we happy with old tire graveyards which breed rats, mosquitoes and other varmints? Let's put an end to "Do Nothing Politics" and finally get some responsible positive results in this township, before it's too late.

Council, quit overspending

EDITOR: If the City Officials in Inkster and the members of the City Council believe that the residents of this city "don't care about it," they learned last week that we do care about our city. We are sick and tired of inept and "expensive government."

And we are going to do something about it, if the City Fathers persist upon raising and raising our taxes. When we can't put food in our children's mouths, we are not going to give our heard-earned money to government. That's the simplest way to put it.

We don't need a personnel director, a public relations director, a director to make sure that the personnel and public relations directors are doing their work.

Cut the cost of government! Don't raise our taxes — or face the consequences. Maybe it's time for some of you folks in City Hall to stand in the unemployment lines and see how degrading it is.

We don't want handouts. We want work. And when we can find it, we don't want to give half of what we earn back to a government that is getting fat. Fat. Fat.

The city says they need more money to continue the present services at the present level we have.

If this is so, why haven't they replaced the police and firemen who have quit, retired, or resigned to go somewhere else?

They say if they don't receive the money they'll have to cut services, namely, fire and police personnel. They will do it anyway, just ask them how many are going to be taken off July 1st. It does not make any difference to them.

How about selling the Buick they bought for the city manager or is he too proud to drive a smaller car?

How about cutting the officials' salaries that they just raised themselves?

They could stop taking those trips around the country.

They could sell the China they bought for the use of our officials and get a cheaper set so everyone can use them.

They could consolidate some of the offices including the new positions they opened up for friends of our city manager.

We should be hiring city residents. This would eliminate the higher salaries, and put our people back to work.

The more I see of what is happening, the more I sense the recall is justifiable. This way we could start all over. It might open the eyes of the Union's Region IE which supported this shamble. I am ashamed to admit that I am a UAW member. These officials have been so smug in the last few years it's about time the people of Inkster woke up and not be hoodwinked by the Union.

There are a lot of good honest people running for office.

Wake up citizens! Let our city officials know how you stand. This won't be the last you hear from them unless we the citizens of Inkster speak up with our voices and votes.

If you would like to know where to get the money to pay the bills, quit over-spending as we have done in the past six years, check the record, trips, high salaries, paying for things that were not contracted properly.

WILLIAM TEGGE

P.S. I have lived in this city 57 years and have never seen a council as inept as this one.

He brightens our corner

EDITOR: I was wondering if you could mention a wonderful citizen's name and deed in your newspaper? This person happens to be my grandfather. He saw a need for a traffic light at a very dangerous corner. He got up a petition and had all the people concerned sign it. He took it to City Hall and presented it to Council and petitioned them for a traffic light at the corner of Glenwood and Venoy.

It was a long time before there was anything done about it. There were many accidents and minor injuries, but an end result to all of his phone calls and constant visits to City Hall was that we finally did get a light at this intersection.

I feel that my grandfather performed his duty as a good citizen. I only hope that more people would be like him. My grandfather is Joseph Romatz who has retired and is now living in Beaverton, Michigan.

Delighted with flag displays

EDITOR: In these trying times I was delighted to see so many Wayne residents displaying the flag on June 22. I also wanted our people to know that we held a very impressive "flag raising ceremony" on Flag Day in front of the Wayne Towers.

Among those who were present included our association's president, Hilda Erickson, Lloyd Swonden, and Earl Steiner. We pledged the Allegiance to the Flag and sang: "God Bless America."

The beautiful flag was a gift to the building from Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Logue.

Belleville Lake should be used

EDITOR: Shame on all those people who oppose the use of beautiful Belleville Lake.

Just how many of these people who oppose the use of the lake would be here to do all the beautiful recreational things we do if their parents, brothers, sisters, aunts, uncles, cousins, and friends were not permitted the use and enjoyment of the lake in the first place?

It's because of the privileges they had on the lake that they became residents, taxpayers, business operators, supporters of associations, clubs and voters.

Why not welcome people to have the same opportunities — give them signs of welcome instead of signs of "Not Permitted" and "No Fishing Allowed."

Belleville Lake is beautiful, and people can be beautiful if we remember the Golden Rule.

It's always 'fair' weather

EDITOR: I would like to thank the residents of Canton, Plymouth and the surrounding communities for their support of the Canton Jaycees Fair.

A few of you may have felt a few rain drops or experienced muddy shoes and for that I apologize. Your enjoyment at the Fair is and always will be our main concern.

We hope Mother Nature will be kinder to us next year and you will again come out and enjoy yourself.

Good behavior commended

EDITOR: School principals and teachers spend time and energy working with a few children who have discipline problems. As a result our time is limited in communicating with parents of students who come to school displaying good citizenship.

P.D. Graham Elementary School has many well-behaved boys and girls. They, too, deserve our time and attention. We want to acknowledge the vast majority of our children who are well-mannered and courteous, studious and respectful. Thank you, students and parents, for doing a good job.

Darcy defends Grandma Joyce

EDITOR: I am Joyce Hagelthorn's granddaughter. I am very mad at Mrs. Petris who wrote those nasty things about my grandma. My grandma loved George, "Our dog," who did not die but went to live with my uncle Alan, who really owned him in Mississippi, and my grandma cried as hard as the rest of us when we said good-by.

My grandma always has lots of kids at her house and I bet she loves more people than Mrs. Petris.

And George wasn't mean, he was funny just like Grandma. We love George and we love Grandma and we think you are mean, Mrs. Petris.

Ask Carol Premo

Time after time...

By CAROL PREMO, PhD.

DEAR CAROL,

I attend many meetings. It is rare to have one of them start on time. They usually start five to 30 minutes late.

I find this very irritating as I have better things to do then wait around. Also I do not feel it would be appropriate for me to be intentionally late.

How could I handle this?

Always on Time

DEAR ON TIME,

Have you considered setting your own guidelines? Frequently in the business and the professional world 20 minutes is considered adequate waiting time.

If a person is not there by then it is assumed that the appointment time is not being kept.

For example, if a professor at the university is 20 minutes late it is usually assumed that he-she is not coming and the students are free to leave.

Establish in your own mind what you consider an appropriate usage of your time and how much time you can realistically afford to wait and when that time is up — leave.

Hopefully people will ultimately get the idea that if they continue to be inconsiderate and late, they will not find you there waiting when they do arrive.

DEAR CAROL,

I have been married for five years. My husband is a nice sort and I care for him deeply. The problem is he is not very demonstrative about showing he appreciates me.

Like, I think the person who cooks should be thanked (maybe complimented), who brings a cup of coffee should be thanked, etc., should be thanked each time whether it is the first time or the fifteen hundredth time.

My husband disagrees. He feels his appreciation is obvious and need not be expressed every time.

Also, he says I do not thank him when he comes home from a long day at work and earns the money to support us. That is true, I never really thought about it that way before he mentioned it.

Well, I don't know. I don't know how to show or be shown appreciation. How can I handle this so that we convey our understanding of the value of each other.

Thank you.

DEAR THANK YOU,

How about a little more common sense approach? There is a vast area of difference between lack of consideration and being taken for granted and being overly effusive and formally polite in intimate situations.

I agree that kindness and consideration should not be taken for granted but overt demonstrations such as thank you for dinner, it was very good, etc., night after night, year after year, would render it into the tedious.

There are many different ways to express appreciation. Loved ones generally do so much for each other; perhaps one of the ways to show appreciation aside from verbally is through reciprocity.

DEAR CAROL,

I am retired. Basically my days are filled with gardening, housekeeping (I am a widower), golfing, some fishing, etc. I am also involved in some men's activities and church functions.

Throughout my life I have gone on standard type vacations — camping, cruises, resorts, etc.

Now that my body is slowing down a bit I am less interested in these kinds of trips. I have been reading more and want a kind of vacation that stretches my mind and not my body.

I don't want to sign up for a local recreation program, community college course, 'Y' class, etc. I want to go somewhere away from home.

Do you have any suggestions?

Senior Vacationeer

DEAR VACATIONEER,

Yes. An interesting program called the Elderhostel combines the traditions of education and hosteling. It is a network of over 300 college and universities in all the states and Canada which offer special low cost, one week programs for older adults. The program states in its catalogue that lack of formal education is not a barrier to taking these courses.

To get a catalogue listing the hundreds of different courses, write Elderhostel, 100 Boylston Street, Suite 200, Boston, MA 02116. The vast array of course choices is staggering. I hope you find a program in a locale you like. Good luck.

Reflections

A con that backfired

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

When I was raising kids the most outstanding quality they had was their forgetfulness. I didn't have a kid who could remember where he had put his schoolbooks, his electric train, his shoes, or the electronic contraptions that hung on every Christmas tree, and went off just as the baby had fallen asleep.

My kids had a hard time remembering their own names. I know that to be true, because I used to grow hoarse shouting.

"Fred," I would call to the kid walking one foot past me. Nothing on that kid would twitch. I would try again. "Fred," I would shout. No twitch. At last I would rush right up to him and shout his name in his ear, and he would go on being a zombie, right out the backdoor, disappear and not be seen again until after the bath water had been poured down the drain.

Sometimes I would think that perhaps I had the wrong name attached to the kid, and I would go down the whole list of six, but he responded to none of them.

It wasn't only Fred. It was each one of them, and by the time I was feeling fairly well established as a mother, I became convinced that it wasn't anything physical wrong with my kids, like a loss of hearing, or anything like that, it was just plain forgetfulness.

I came to this conclusion because it wasn't only when I yelled at them that they forgot their names, but it was other things like forgetting to take off their jeans at night, and forgetting to put on clean clothes in the morning.

One of my kids claimed it wasn't forgetfulness, but practicality. It saved time, he claimed.

And that's the kid who has my grandson Jason. Jason must take after his mother, because he does not take after his father, nor his uncles and aunts. That kid remembers everything!

Three months ago I spent a week at his house taking care of him and his brother while their mother had a ball in the hospital, being waited on, trying on pretty nightdresses, and perfume, receiving flowers and guests, and all the other good stuff that comes with having a new baby.

Jason was very fussy about being properly dressed when he went to bed, and he got up at the crack of dawn, ready to settle down with his 'Star Wars' people and enjoy himself. When he had to be dragged from the space ship and pulled over to the breakfast table, he would sit with his chin drooping in his cereal and say, "I hate school. I hate school."

That was a real challenge for a grandmother, and so I would be chipper like grandmothers are supposed to be, and I told him to say he LIKED school every morning, and eventually he would find himself liking school. He gave me a quizzical look from the bottom of his cereal bowl, and then scowled.

"I hate school. Why don't they teach me something I don't know?"

Because kids are mercenary, as any parent can tell you, I decided to bribe the kid.

"If you say each day you LIKE school," I told him, wiping Rice Krispies off his chin, "you will soon find you really do, and when you find you really do, and school is out for the year, I will buy you a surprise."

"Oh wow!" he said. Digging into another bowl of crackling, snapping, popping stuff, he contemplated what he really wanted as a surprise.

"I need a new bike," he told me, his mouth full, and his eyes looking off into space.

That was three months ago. Last week he brought home a certificate showing he had made it through kindergarten. He didn't even wait to show it to his mother before he grabbed the telephone and called his grandmother.

"Grandma," he shouted. "I LIKE school. I LOVE school. When do I get my surprise?"

It took awhile for grandma to remember, which is probably why she had nothing but forgetful kids.

"Oh," I said brightly. "I'm so glad you like school. You are sure you REALLY like it?"

"I REALLY like it, grandma," he shouted. "When do I get my surprise?"

"Since you really like it," I told him. "We will go the first of the week and get your surprise."

"What day?" he shouted. I told him the first day in the week, "What time?" he shouted even louder.

The first of the week found the kid trying to con his grandmother out of a new bike, but he settled for more 'Star Wars' people, which probably showed how dumb his grandmother was for not getting the bike.

Clutching his surprise in his hot little hand, he trudged along to the car, and as he settled down in the front seat next to me, a great sigh came from him.

"Boy, I'm sure glad that dumb school is out," and he cradled his Star Wars Commander to his chest.

Auto repairs

Don't be taken for a ride

By DIANE GALE
Guest Columnist

Have you ever received an auto repair bill and felt you were being taken for a ride? If so, you are not alone.

In 1979 the Michigan Department of State, Bureau of Automotive Regulation, received 9,156 complaints from Michigan drivers alone. Of course, this figure does not include the countless unreported disputes.

Paying for unnecessary auto repairs is not only aggravating, but it's also very costly. A study conducted by the National Highway Traffic Safety Association estimated in May, 1978 that the annual consumer loss on auto repairs to total 20 billion dollars.

Most used car owners will agree that if something goes wrong with your car there are three things you can automatically expect from most shops when you take it in for repairs. They are a long wait, accelerating repair costs and at least one loud talking, very angry customer.

Irate patrons are as commonplace as grease and wrenches in most repair facilities. Unfortunately, most auto owners feel they are fighting a hopeless battle when arguing about their bills.

The best ammunition in this case is to know your rights and make yourself familiar with the requirements the law places on these shops.

For instance, all repair facilities are required by law to give their patrons the following:

— A written estimate of the cost before repairs costing $20 or more are performed, or upon request on repairs under $20.

— A detailed invoice (final bill) after repairs are done.

— All of your old parts back which were replaced in the repair job.

Additionally, the law requires the repair facility to register with the Michigan Department of State, and all major repairs must be performed or approved by a state certified mechanic.

Lorraine Hodges, Administrative Analyst, of the Bureau of Automotive Regulation at the Michigan Department of State, explains that the department acts as an unbiased mediator between consumer and repair shop. Hodges says that usually those consumers who file a complaint are seeking a monetary adjustment in his-her bill.

She explains that the most common grievance filed with the department concerns poor workmanship. "This entails all work that was not done to the customer's satisfaction."

The second most common complaint was that the customer did not receive a written estimate of the work to be done. This violates the Public Act 1974 No. 300 which states that the shop must estimate as close as possible the price of labor and parts supplied.

Situations where the repair facility did work that exceeded the estimate without first getting the customer's oral or written approval is the third highest complaint received by the department. This is also in direct violation of the law.

If you are about to have work done on your brakes, engine, suspension mechanisms, or transmission be especially careful because Hodges categorizes these as the most common areas of complaint.

The study conducted by the NHTSA indicated that engine repairs had the highest percentage chance of shops charging consumers for repairs that were not needed.

The Michigan Department of State suggests that the customer direct any questions regarding service work to the manager of the repair facility before taking any other action. If this attempt fails then make a complaint with the department. Hodges says, "The more complaints filed, the higher chances are we'll get rid of the unreputable places."

When a single facility has a number of grievances filed against it the owner's license is in jeopardy of being revoked.

With tight money the last thing Michiganders need is to pay for repair bills that are not necessary. The best way to combat this aggravating battle with unreputable auto repair facilities is by applying this information the next time you get that new clank or squeak fixed.

Wayne softballers earn place in Great Lakes 8 sun

Wayne Memorial's softball team has earned its place "in the sun" this season.

Coach Kevin Schaum's girls' softballers posted a 16-7 over-all and a 12-2 Great Lakes 8 Conference record for their best finish ever and the most victories posted by a Zebra softball team.

"This is the best team I have ever coached in softball," said Coach Schaum, whose team wound up second in the conference, one game out of first place. Monroe's 13-1 won-lost league record gave the Trojans the 1980 championship.

Wayne also came away with more than its share of league honors. The Zebras had at least six players who were given all-league consideration. The league choices included: pitchers: Mary Woodsey (Truman), Marcie Smith (Riverview) and Wayne's Ann Knight (Honorable Mention).

The all-conference infield was made up of: first base - Debbie Mazurek (Wayne Memorial), second - Debbie Rossi (Monroe), third base - Cheryl Trudell (Wayne Memorial), shortstop - Jill Jennings (Monroe) and Kelly Reinink (Wayne - Honorable Mention).

The all-league catcher is Tina Russel (Wayne Memorial). Wayne was represented in the outfield by Debbie Gorshek, while Riverview had two selections: - Kim Brodeur, and Kari Riopelle and Tina Vandercook was the final selection.

Miss Gorshek, a senior who co-captained this year's Wayne squad, played left field and was picked for all-league recognition for the third consecutive year. She batted .349 (29 for 83 at bats) and collected 22 singles, five doubles, a triple and homer. In her stats she also batted in 20 runs, scored 29 times and walked 21 times.

Coaching is like a carrousel

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

Don Haney lives two blocks from Plymouth Salem which, for those who haven't followed high school wrestling in the area, could mean little.

But for those who spew out prep wrestling stats, the geographic propensity of a legendary Wayne Memorial mat coach residing a few blocks from a high school that is building a wrestling dynasty — the combination is "deadly."

DON HANEY

Haney, a cold disciplinarian and a scholarly engineer of winning high school wrestling teams, "retired" from the coaching world a few years ago after he guided Wayne to greatness in Michigan. His team won a Class A state title and his teams have produced a wealth of wrestling talent.

Acknowledged as a rapier sharp tactician in a sport that attracts a wide spectrum of humanity, Hanel retreated to his niche in the bleachers four years ago despite a fusillade of support that he stay on with his grapplers. He retired and one of his proteges, John Wood, took command.

Wood has managed to shoulder the burden of putting together line-ups. He has been unselfish of his time and energy, working toward a goal that remained unobtainable for him and his teams.

And, because Wayne has never been able to repeat and reach its former glory, there has unjustifiably been general disenchantment among the Wayne ranks.

Haney, it was rumored, was itching to get back into coaching. With Salem and Coach Ron Krueger a few steps away, would the "old pro" wind up as some sort of assistant coach at Plymouth?

Wood moved fast. He met with his ex-coach and the young mentor got a commitment.

Haney will return next year as Wayne's wrestling coach, according to William Hawley, athletic director at the high school. Wood and Haney will field the team together.

"It is true," Hawley said. "Coach Haney and Coach Wood will be coaching the team together next year. We know that our fans will be elated to learn about Haney's decision to come out of retirement and help with the team."

Although Hawley's announcement may come as a surprise, there had been rumors that the veteran coach wanted to get back into active coaching. Haney also has no illusions of grandeur. Just hard work.

Coaching is like a carrousel with its ups and downs.

How interesting it is to watch as that carrousel goes around and around.

News isn't good for Eagles

There's 'bad news' tonight for Romulus High basketball fans. It appears that they won't get that fourth spot in the annual Western Wayne Holiday Tournament, after all.

According to a release mailed out to the sports desk, the team that will fill Belleville High's slot in the tournament is Garden City West.

Hate to say it — but I think Wayne Memorial, Westland John Glenn and Cherry Hill missed an opportunity to play some real good and tough competition by not allowing Coach Rod Hanna's Eagles "In."

But, again, that may just have been the reason for the move.

Capt. Nemo, APA in control of Romulus Class A leagues

Undefeated Captain Nemo continued its domination of the Romulus Class A Men's Softball Circuit as it buried cellar-dweller Hal's Market 21-8 for its ninth consecutive victory of the campaign.

Phil Wiserman hammered two homers and stroked a pair os singles to lead Nemo's to the easy triumph.

In the meantime, previously unimpressive Michigan Contractors rattled second place Bingamen's Agency 13-9. It was the third loss in nine starts for the losers while the Contractors padded their record to 3-5 on the year.

The game was close all the way and Ron Dick, who drilled two roundtrippers and a single, helped bring about the upset. The key blow

Exploding for six runs in the third inning, league-leading First Edition Lounge held off The Disciples 11-7 to remain atop of the Westland Men's Class A Slo-Pitch League.

First Edition has managed to win eight of its 10 games and hold a two-game cushion over Jamies (7-4) and the Jock Shop (6-4) as the teams jockey for the stretch drive.

Dave Conlin belted an over-the-fence homer for the leaque leaders, drove in three and scored three runs in a three-for-four day at the plate. Teammate Ron Honeycutt, who tripled for one of his three hits, and Pat Kelley; who chipped in two hits, led the assault on loser Don Jarrett.

Jarrett was tagged for 14 hits, while winner Dennis Kesik gave up 10, including two each to Ron Staples, Dale Luke and George Korte.

Joe Thomas pounded out 12 hits to humble pitcher Tim Kennedy and Dearborn Real Estate 13-4 in other Class A action. Kennedy served up a pair of over-the-fencers to Bud Daniels who accounted for three RBIs. John Hines and Randy Temple split four hits.

Winning pitcher Bob Fullerton was tagged for 10 hits, four of these going to Steve Hopton.

Jamie came up with a key 6-5 extra-inning victory over the Jock Shop as the winners struck for two decisive runs in the last of the eighth. Winning pitcher Bob Hood had his problems with John Marmul who laced three singles and scored three times. John Less latched on to a single and double.

Loser Tom Tompkins gave up 11 hits, including roundtrippers to Ken Landini and Gerry Detter who knocked in a couple of runs and had two other hits for the day. Chris Murphy accounted for three hits, including a double.

J & D Auto, scheduled to play in a Wayne Tournament this weekend, spoiled Studio Lounge's record in a Class A women's softball showdown. Putting five runs on the board in the fifth inning, J & D edged the previously undefeated leader, 5-4, handing Mary Traynor her first setback of the season.

Winner Judy Cousineau gave up 13 hits, three of them to Kathy Rowgowski, while Lynne Korte tripled in one run and Kim Brosted hammered two hits.

Traynor had troubles with Debbie Rashi who laced three hits, scored three times and had an RBI. Jan Harstead and Toni Walters each singled and scored for the winners.

In the only other Class A game, Johnny's Shell scored four times in the first inning and went on tc win a

Slow-pitch crown is winner's prize

Wayne to host nation's top teams

Some of the top women's softball teams in the nation and the state will converge upon Wayne this weekend to take part in the Fourth Annual Slo-Pitch Tournament.

The tournament, scheduled for June 27, 28 and 29, will be held Friday, beginning at 7 p.m. at Attwood Park, Howe Road and Annapolis.

"This tournament has brought together some of the finest women's teams in the nation," said tourney director Bill Schwartz. "It is very popular with the public and I know we're proud of being the host city."

Along with winning the prestigious tournament championship, at stake also is a berth for the World Tournament that will be staged over the Labor Day weekend in Kinston, North Carolina.

The winner of the Wayne tournament will automatically qualify for the world championships.

Fans may look forward at seeking such teams in action on the local diamond such as the Taylor Sporting Goods-sponsored "Stingers" who placed second last year and third at the world tournament. Athletic Uniforms, which won the tournament three years ago, will be among the entries.

New York, Parma, Ohio, Cleveland will be represented in the tournament in Wayne.

Wayne will enter two local teams: J & D Auto and the Bee Jays who are the toughest in the local Class A circuit.

Also look for Dapco of Dexter, Michigan and Goodnough of Monroe to be in the thick of the race for the title.

Competition will continue until the field is narrowed down to six teams which will play on Sunday to determine the championship. There is a field of 16 teams which will begin swinging on Friday.

most sure-handed outfielder I've seen in softball," said Coach Schaum. In 52 fielding chances, she didn't commit an error. She also successfully stole base 12 times.

Mazurek was the other co-captain who was the mainstay of the Zebras' offense and defense. The slugging first baseman batted .392 and in 167 fielding opportunities made only three errors. She knocked in 16 runs, walked 20 times, and scored 34 runs. Statistically, Debbie led the team in doubles with 11, collected 16 singles, tripled once and homered once.

"Debbie was the guts of our offense and defense," the Wayne coach said. "She kept the team going at all times."

Russell will be returning next year to improve upon a .392 batting average and 16 RBIs. She had three triples, a double and 27 singles and only allowed one stolen base all season, while she picked off four runners.

Sophomore Chery Trudell led the Zebras in five categories: most runs scored (34), most RBIs (33), most doubles (5), most triples (5) and most home runs (3). She also hit 22 singles in a .444 batting year.

"Probably our most promising softball player," said Coach Schaum, "Cheryl is a strong hitter, very fast and aggresive and also an excellent learner."

With a ERA of 1.77, pitcher Knight managed to chalk up 14 victories in 19 outings. She also notched 36 strikeouts, walked 67 and gave up 95 hits. The senior hurler was the Zebras' most consistent pitcher, although she wasn't considered a fast ball pitcher, she was able to move the ball around the plate to keep hitters off stride.

Reinink, a junior, held down the shortstop chores. She batted .342, getting 26 hits in 72 appearances at the plate. She reached base on balls 19 times and had 16 RBIs, 23 singles and three doubles.

"Kelly is a very dependable shortstop," said Schaum, "The kind of athlete who goes out and does the job day after day."

9-2 decision over Alberta Thomas and pitcher Diane Kasper. Kasper was tagged for a homer and single by Ann Kolnitys. Margaret Stevens and Debbie Gorshek each had a pair of hits for Johnny's.

Sue Chopp, the winner, picked up her fourth victory as she twirled a 12 hitter.three of those hits went to Mary Beteau, while Shelly Arner and JoAnne Wright split four singles.

While rains idled undefeated Token Lounge, Rocco's stayed close behind the women's Class B leader with a 14-6 victory over B & E Sales. Scoring six times in the opening inning, Rocco's and winning pitcher Doris Madar received excellent hitting support from Debbie Knot, who swatted three hits and scored three times. Donna Schrader belted a triple and homer.

Madar gave up 12 hits, one more than loser Helen Rye who connected for two singles and drove in one run. Judy McKidde and Kathy Scanton each collected two hits for the losers.

breviated game, shortened because of the "mercy rule". Winner Cindy Neal scattered four hits, including a triple to Marge Burtsha and singles to Cindy Lowell and Mary Urbanck.

Connie Bushaw, Jan Blackburn, and Carol Mull paced the hitting attack on loser Karen Beer.

Scoring three times in the bottom of the fifth, Jeanne's Gems earned a close 6-4 victory over Char's Ceramics. Winning pitcher Mary Hulea was tagged for eight hits, two each by Sue Harding and Colleen Dittmar. Jody Santora doubled and drove in a run for the losers.

Karen Phillips had a sterling day at the plate for the winners as she hammered a pair of roundtrippers and singled off of losing pitcher Linda Sylverter who also gave up two singles apiece to Dawn Miller and Denise Rabel.

Westland Lock & Keys turned back Rowe Electric 13-4 in the only other Class B game. Jan Crawford posted the victory but not after the electricians racked up 13 hits, including a single and double by Paula Hood and two hits each by Sharon Vreeland and Chele Kosla.

of the game, however, was a three-run homer in the bottom of the sixth by Mike Lawicki.

In another cliffhanger, Bates and Son's edged Michigan Bell, 8-7, as a last inning run settled the issue. Dennis Brown sliced a single to drive home Don McMann with the decisive run. Tom McCloskey's base hit put McMann into scoring position.

Ralph Prestia paced the losers with a perfect 4 for 4 at the plate. He latched on to a homer and three singles.

In the only other men's Class A game, Hangar Lounge turned back Belleville Die 25-13 as John Patterson, Dick Deck, Butch and Bob Bowen combined for a total of 13 hits between them. Mel Allen led the losers with a homer and a pair of singles.

Over in the women's circuit, league-leading APA had little trouble with Little Caesar's as it chalked up a 15-8 victory for their ninth win in 10 starts. Theresa Gibson blasted a grand-slam homer in the third to spark the winners, while Faye Savage replied with three singles for the losers.

The Progressive Club remained in the title chase as it beat back Morgan Collison 13-7. The second-place club erupted for seven runs in the second inning as Patty Dick contributed three hits in the winning cause.

Bilmar's came up short as it dropped a 11-6 count to Suburban Oil who posted its second win in 10 starts. Bilmar's has failed to find the winner's circle in 10 starts.

It's 'no contest'

Brewers know who's champ

Taking its cue from the Republican Party, the Daly Drive-In Brewers have all but wrapped up the 1980 Romulus South Senior Baseball League Championship.

Although there is approximately three weeks left, the Brewers have amassed a 13-1 record and the second place Cardinals, who are standing on a 7-5 mark, have little, if any, chance of catching the frontrunners.

In games this week, the Mets defeated the Giants 13-5 as Lee Wilcox picked up the pitching victory.

The Brewers, managed by Barry Baumann, held the league spotlight again with back-to-back victories over the Cardinals of Colburn Shell. The Cardinals, two games back of the Brewers before the contests, had a chance to catch them, but fell short. In the first meeting, the Brewers blanked their arch-rivals, 6-0. Todd Wallace fired the shutout. Losing pitcher Tim Holt allowed the Brewers only one hit, that by Ray Langley.

Holt ran into control problems and walked 15. Wallace on the other hand, gave up four hits, two each for Matt Percy and Jeffrey Ottenbreit. He also struck out 10.

The second game saw Duane Hess pitch for the Brewers against a tough pitcher Bob Whaling for the Cardinals. The Brewers took an early 1-0 lead, but it was erased when Bob Whaling drilled a two-run triple to give the Cardinals a 4-1 lead.

The Brewers racked five hits in between walks and took a 6-4 lead, on a key hit by Chris Marsiglia.

The duel continued as the Cardinals came back to score and tie the contest at 6-6 with a key double again by Whaling who scored Tim Holt.

In the bottom of the seventh, the Brewers put the game away after Todd Gibbs led off with a double and scored on a hit by Langley.

The Brewers clashed with the Mets, and defeated them by a score of 14-1 as Chris Marsiglia chalked up his fifth victory of the year. Harley Helton went 2 for 3. Bernie Zarb connected for the Mets only hits.

In the last game for the week, the Cardinals bounced back on the winning track by edging the winless Giants, 9-4. Matt Percy got credit for the victory, while Gary Hardrick took the loss. Percy picked up two hits to help his cause.

Suburban Living Editor

THINGS YOU MAY NOT HAVE THOUGHT ABOUT — Although mustard is its main product, bet you didn't know that the R.T. French Company produces more than 360 food and household products.

How many are you familiar with? Perhaps the spices, herbs, seasonings, extracts or packaged potatoes? Those are merely a few! There are even doggie donuts and other canine treats.

Mustard, though, is the firm's biggest seller and more than 500,000 jars are sold daily. Cutting the mustard for R.T. French has been going on for 100 years now, 1980 being the centennial year for the Rochester, N.Y. based company.

The fact that French's and prepared mustard are virtually synonymous is somewhat of a surprise since few people expected mustard to catch on when George French introduced the product in the spring of 1904 and charged 15 cents for a 15-ounce jar.

French had been experimenting with a prepared mustard that Americans would accept for uses other than a base for salad dressing.

It took the Louisiana Exposition in St. Louis and the "invention" of the hot dog as we know it today to put mustard on the tongues of Americans everywhere.

A vendor at the fair was selling sausages and rapidly losing the gloves he lent his customers to eat his sausages with (that being the custom at the time.)

In desperation he decided to dispense with the gloves and wrap the sausages in buns. Someone, a French's spokesman said, added mustard to the sausage (hot dog) and the combination took off like wildfire.

The acceptance was so widespread that French's had difficulty keeping up with the demand until the 1920's and the increased use of power machinery. Sales sank during the Depression but increased 35 times in the post-World War II era.

French's centennial comes in the wake of a year when the company recorded its highest sales volume ever. In 1979, company sales totaled $200 million.

And to think that a little squirt from a mustard dispenser can add up to that!

READY FOR MORE TRIVIA? (Again from TV's "Hollywood Squares" — facts you might be interested to know.)

The United States has twice as many Nobel Prize winners as any other country. England rated second place and the Soviet Union came in seventh.

According to a recent Roper Poll, the two household chores men do most are routine repairs and taking out the garbage.

Love, intelligence and a sense of humor top the list in what men look for (want) in a woman.

You don't think so when you're having one but nightmares DO have a very useful purpose in that they serve as a valuable escape valve for tension and fears.

And what is the average man most likely to lie about? No, not THAT! It's his height!

And guess what expression Americans (in a national survey) said they hated more than any other? (I'd have thought it was "you know" but 'twasn't!) "Have a nice day" took the honors for being false and overdone.

TEE TIME

DAVE: Doctor, the baby got into my golf bag and swallowed all my tees.

DOCTOR: I'll be right over. What are you doing in the meantime?

DAVE: 'I'm practicing putting.

LOOKING FOR A COOL SUMMER SALAD? Here are a couple off-beat recipes that just might appeal to lovers of cottage cheese. And they come to us courtesy the American Dairy Association.

MINTED FRUIT SALAD

2 cups cottage cheese
2 tsp. grated orange peel
1 tsp. finely chopped fresh mint
1 small cantaloupe
leaf lettuce
sliced fresh strawberries

Mix cottage cheese, orange peel and mint, chill for ½ hour to blend flavors. Cut cantaloupe crosswise into four slices; remove seeds and rind. Place lettuce on individual salad plates; then melon ring. Fill centers with ½ cup cottage cheese mixture; top with fresh whole strawberries. Makes 4 servings.

VARIATION: Substitute 1 tsp. grated lemon peel for orange peel. Cut melon in wedges and use blueberries or raspberries in place of strawberries.

FROZEN FRUIT CHEESE SALAD

2 cups cottage cheese
1 cup dairy sour cream
2 Tblsp. confectioners sugar
1 can (13¼ oz.) pineapple tidbits, well drained
1 cup chopped orange sections
1 cup blueberries
1 large banana, sliced
½ cup sliced maraschino cherries
½ cup toasted salted almonds

Whip cottage cheese in a large mixing bowl until nearly smooth. Lightly blend in sour cream and sugar; fold in fruits and nuts. Spread into 9-inch square pan. Cover with foil and freeze until firm.

CREAMY PINK DRESSING

2 Tblsp. maraschino cherry juice
1 cup dairy sour cream

Gently fold cherry juice into sour cream; cover and chill.

Allow salad to stand at room temperature at least 1 hour before serving. Cut into squares, place on salad greens, serve with dressing. Yield: 16 squares.

THE BOTTOM LINE: The honeymoon is over when she stops dropping her eyes and starts raising her voice.

About deadlines...

As is the case with most human beings, we fail to see what we're not looking for or fail to see what we don't want to see.

In this particular instance we are referring to deadline notices which we attempt to print each week on the Suburban Living pages — boxed in notices that say "Suburban Living Deadline, Thursday, 5 p.m."

There's a reason for this deadline, be assured of that. We have to have time to prepare copy to be taken to the typesetters in our production office in Wayne.

With news coming across our desk and via the telephone throughout the day, there has to be time in which to write, rewrite and edit copy as well as to compose heads and cutlines and plan layouts for the next issue.

We ask that you please try to remember that 5 p.m. Thursday is the cut-off time for accepting news which you expect to see in the following week's Suburban Living section. We will gladly take items after the deadline but, more likely than not, they will be a week late appearing in print.

Your cooperation will get your stories printed on time.

Blade steaks: super for grilling

Smart shoppers can't afford to pass up a bargain. That's why they so often pick up several beef blade steaks when they stop at the meat case. These meaty steaks from the beef chuck, that are most popular during the summer when the grill is in active use, are priced considerably less per pound than steaks from the loin and rib sections, more often associated with broiling.

Since attractive price tags make beef blade steaks candidates for frequent repetition on the menu, the smart shopper always is on the lookout for tasty preparation variations to insure that enthusiasm at the dinner table doesn't dimish.

The realm of possibilities for variety is extensive for the steaks can be flavored by a wide range of marinades before being broiled outdoors. For a unique and appealing approach to blade steaks, try them cooked over the coals with sweet and sour accents.

The seasonings for the vinegar-oil-sugar marinade are literally "in the bag" for they are tied together in a bouquet garni. The bag allows the spices and herbs, which flavor the marinade as it cooks, to be easily discarded before the steaks are marinated.

The expertly-seasoned marinade serves a two-fold purpose for not only does it flavor the steak, but it also helps tenderize it. The acid quality of the marinade makes it possible to cook this less tender steak by the dry heat method of broiling. Cooking the steak only to rare or medium also is recommended for the sake of tenderness.

Sweet-Sour Beef Blade Steak

2 beef 7-bone or blade steaks, cut ¾ inch thick
Two-thirds cup cider vinegar
Two-thirds cup water
¼ cup oil
¼ cup sugar
2 tsp. salt
8 whole cloves
4 sprigs parsley
1 large clove garlic, minced
1 bay leaf
½ tsp. celery seed
¼ tsp. crushed red pepper pods

Combine vinegar, water, oil, sugar and salt in saucepan. Make a bouquet garni by placing cloves, parsley, garlic, bay leaf, celery seed and pepper pods on a square of cheesecloth and tying securely. Add to vinegar mixture and simmer 15 minutes. Cool. Remove bouquet garni. Place steaks in utility dish and pour marinade over them, turning to coat. Cover dish securely and marinade in refrigerator 6 to 8 hours (or overnight), turning at least once. Remove steaks for marinade and place on grill over ash-covered coals (or on rack in broiler pan) so surface of meat is 4 inches from heat. Broil 7 to 10 minutes on each side, depending on degree of doneness desired (rare or medium). Makes 6 servings.

Beef blade steaks can easily be identified as thinner versions of popular blade pot-roasts. Although the steaks may contain several small bones, the most distinguishable one is the long, narrow blade bone. This bone resembles the figure 7 in 7-bone steaks.

MR. AND MRS. HERMAN J. KOZUB

Now living in Livonia

Kozub, Cilia marry; fly to Hawaii for honeymoon

A two weeks honeymoon on the Hawaiian Islands of Maui, Kaui and Oahu followed the spring wedding of Cheryl Ann Cilia of Belleville and Herman John Kozub who are now residing at 31113 Dorais, Livonia.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Cilia Jr. of 47940 Hull Rd., Belleville, Cheryl was given in marriage by her father. The Rev. Raymond Skoney presided at the five thirty ceremony at St. Anthony's Catholic Church with some 150 assembled guests in attendance.

For her May 16 altar date, the bride selected an off-white organza gown designed with a high collar of Venice lace above an illusion neckline. The lace motif was repeated on the long sheer sleeves and for the wide-brimmed hat which held a fingertip veil of silk illusion.

Completing her bridal finery was a bouquet of white daisies, yellow spider mums and baby's breath.

Sue Cilia of Ypsilanti was her sister's maid of honor in a dusty rose qiana gown with a Chantilly lace bodice and high illusion neckline. Her bouquet was comprised of pink and white daisies, dark pink mums and baby's breath.

The trio of bridesmaids in identical ensembles included Lu Ellen Cilia of Ypsilanti and Cathy Cilia of Belleville, sisters of the bride, and Beverly Atwood of Ypsilanti.

Five-year-old Sheryl Kozub, a niece of the bridegroom, wore a pale pink organza frock for her role as flowergirl. Carrying out the duties of ringbearer was a nephew, 7-year-old Anthony Aiello.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kozub of 4873 Westland, Dearborn, the bridegroom chose Michael Guido of Dearborn to serve as as his best man. Ushers were Phil Hespen of Dearborn; Allan Judge of Livonia and Allan Duszkiewicz of Dearborn.

A reception for some 325 guests followed at the UAW Hall in Westland. Mrs. Cilia greeted relatives and friends in a wisteria-colored formal gown with a sheer pleated knit jacket to which she pinned her corsage of white orchids. The bridegroom's mother chose to wear a chartreuse chiffon gown with silver appliques. Her wrist corsage was made of orchids to match her dress.

A 1974 graduate of Belleville High School, the new Mrs. Kozub is now working as a ticket agent for United Airlines at Detroit Metro Airport.

Her husband, who holds a degree in electrical engineering from Wayne State University, works as an electrical engineer for Detroit Edison in Detroit.

Galaxy Rebekah Lodges hold joint birthday party

The 93rd birthday of Galaxy IOOF Lodge 384 and the 85th birthday of Rebekah Lodge 250 of Belleville were jointly celebrated June 7 in the beautifully-decorated hall on Savage Road.

A 6:30 dinner featured tables accented in pink, green and white with matching favors and centerpieces of pink geraniums.

The welcome was extended by Ellen Siesmaszko, Noble Grand of Rebekah Lodge 250, and the response was given by Pearl Van Sant, Outside Guardian of Rebekah Assembly. PNG Myrtle Goble of Astral Rebekah Lodge 250 gave the invocation.

A letter of congratulations was read from Belleville Mayor Justin Emerson commending both lodges for the community services they undertake each year. Eleven lodges from Michigan were present as were many dignitaries including Grand Secretary IOOF of Michigan, Ralph Smith and his wife, Helen; Vice-president of the Rebekah Assembly, Mona White; Treasurer of the Rebekah Assembly, Zetta Timpson; Outside Guardian of the Rebekah Assembly, Pearl Van Sant; and Past President of the Rebekah Assembly, Frances Gorney.

Also given recognition were Darryl Raymond, a member of Galaxy IOOF Lodge 384 for many years, and his wife, Josephine.

PNG Effie Kerbyson was emcee for the celebration and along with PNG Betty Mida had compiled and edited in book form the history of the lodges which PNG Lucille Reinhackel read during the program.

Also speaking were Zetta Timpson and NG of Galaxy Lodge 384, Louis J. Kissel, Jr. Entertainment was supplied by the "Hotsie Totsie Band" comprised of Belleville and Wayne members who left the group with remembrances of a shot gun wedding, a graceful hula dancer, fisherman and other skits.

PG Frank Reinhackel gave the benediction and all enjoyed punch and anniversary cake before departing.

Local attorney is speaker at BPW's closing dinner

The final dinner meeting of the Belleville Business and Professional Womens Club was held at Faith United Methodist Church of Denton. Following dinner the program was conducted by Maxine Miller, chairman of the Finance Committee.

The committee had secured William C. Hidenfelter, attorney-at-law, as speaker of the evening. His topic was "Wills and Estates". He emphasized the importance of having a will in order to direct your choice of distribution of personal goods. Without a will the State of Michigan makes the distribution of goods according to the state law.

Questions were later directed to Hidenfelter and he answered as many as time permitted. Hidenfelter grew up in the Belleville area and chose to remain here to practice law.

Georgia Badgett, acting chairman of the Scholarship Committee, presented the club's annual scholarship to Deborah Burek. Mrs. Badgett had as her guest Dianne Isherwood, counselor at Belleville High School. Miss Isherwood was very helpful in assisting the club in its choice of a scholarship winner.

Another special event was welcoming and initiating three new members, into the BPW Club. A certificate of membership and a pink rose were given to Evelyn Griffith, Audrey McKee and Belinda Waller.

Final plans were made regarding the club's booth at the Strawberry Festival which was to include aprons, jewelry, tea-bag holders and chances on a strawberry cookie jar.

The July 7 meeting will be a picnic at the home of the president's sister on North Denton Road.

Elizabeth Creith, Jim Shevrovich wed at St. John's

In a small, intimate ceremony at St. John's Lutheran Church with just 20 family members present, Elizabeth A. Creith became the bride of Jimmy E. Shevrovich.

The Rev. John Schaible presided at the May 31 double ring rite which joined in marriage the daughter of James F. and Virginia A. Creith of 46367 Kozma Rd., Belleville, and the son of Conrad E. and Geraldine E. Shevrovich of 1000 Savage Rd., Belleville.

For the three o'clock rite, the bride donned a formal-length blue gown with lace accenting the sleeves and neckline. Her bouquet was made up of pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Debra J. Maynard of Ypsilanti who wore a long blue gown and carried a bouquet of yellow daisies, yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Daniel A. Vealey of Belleville served as best man.

Mrs. Creith wore for her daughter's wedding a short mint green frock to which she pinned her corsage of pink sweetheart roses and mint green carnations.

A reception for 20 people followed at the Red Apple Restaurant in Belleville after which the newlyweds departed for a 3-day honeymoon at Cedar Point in Sandusky, Ohio. They are now making their home at 120 N. Hamilton, Apt. 2, Ypsilanti.

The young couple attended both Belleville and Huron High Schools.

Debbie Burek is BPW scholarship winner

MISS BUREK

At the June 2 meeting of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club, the recipient of the annual $500 scholarship was announced. Accepting the award was Deborah Burek, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burek of 18787 Savage Rd., Belleville, and one of seven children.

Deborah has been accepted at Madonna College for the fall term and plans to become a registered nurse, specializing in surgery. She chose Madonna College because of its excellent medical program and noted individual student treatment and attention.

She was active in girl's basketball during her high school years, was a member of the National Honor Society and worked with the high school dramatic productions. Camp for diabetic children available

Summer camp for diabetic children and teen-agers ages 6-16 will be held at Tau Beta camp in Columbiaville, northeast of Flint for the five weeks, beginning July 6. Camp Midicha, sponsored by the American Diabetes Association-Michigan Affiliate, is in its 26th consecutive season.

Three 1-week sessions and one 2-week session are set for July 6-12, for ages 6-10; July 13-26, ages 8-14; July 27-Aug. 2, ages 10-16; and Aug. 3-9, ages 8-12.

The camp fee is $125 per week and $240 for the 2-week session. However, camperships are available, and no one is turned away for financial reasons.

Camp Midicha offers youngsters with diabetes the opportunity to be away from home in a medically supervised setting and share problems and concerns with others in the same situation. Through informal discussions, the campers help each other and learn to cope better with the daily discipline needed to care for their diabetes.

Program specialists and counselors plan the activities and supervise the camping program. The medical staff — doctors and nurses — provide 24-hour supervision and a dietitian look after each camper's diet on an individual basis.

The rest of the camping program resembles that of any other summer camp with swimming, canoeing, horseback riding, campfires, overnight campouts, arts and crafts, hiking and many other activities.

Camp applications and brochures may be obtained by writing to the American Diabetes Association Michigan Affiliate, 6131 W. Outer Drive, Detroit 48235, or by calling 342-9333.

Corn starch works

"Mothers have been using corn starch for years as an effective measure against diaper rash," according to pediatric nurse Frann Krajeski. "The super absorbency of corn starch really gets to the No. 1 cause of diaper rash — wetness."

"Pediatricians have been recommending it for years because of its absorbency benefits, and mothers have also recognized its effectiveness," she added.

"However," Nurse Krajeski said, "many moms reluctantly used ordinary cooking corn starch because of its consistency and odor, but now there is an alternative that offers the absorbing advantages of corn starch but is safe and esthetically acceptable."

A new baby corn starch, developed especially for babies in the Johnson & Johnson laboratories, was processed to be free from all harmful bacteria.

It absorbs diaper wetness that causes diaper rash and irritation and absorbs diaper odor.

"As a mother, Nurse Krajeski said, "I really appreciate the super absorbency, the ease of pouring, and that nice fresh light fragrance when I use it on my daughter."

He is currently attending the Wayne County Police Academy and holds a junior status there in the field of criminal justice. The young couple plan to be married August 23 at St. Phillip's Lutheran Church in Ypsilanti.

Auxiliary has new officers

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Sumpter Fire Department held election of officers at its June 4 meeting.

Know benefits

When is a breadwinner's paycheck less than meets the eye?

When it's not backed by sufficient employee benefits, reports the American Council of Life Insurance.

These benefits — the most common being a pension plan, life insurance, health insurance, paid sick leave or other disability income protection and in some cases dental insurance — can be worth thousands of dollars to a family.

So, make sure you know about all your company's employee benefits, the Council advises.

Anniversary story forms available

For those marking wedding anniversaries with celebrations and parties, we have special anniversary forms to fill out. The questionnaires include all the pertinent information needed for putting a story together.

If you are planning to celebrate an anniversary and would like your friends to read about it in The Belleville Enterprise or The Romulus Roman, simply stop by our office at 116 Fourth St., Belleville, or telephone the Suburban Living Editor, Lee Smith, at 697-9191 to have a form mailed out.

We will be happy to accept photographs if they meet with our specifications. Please include one if it's available.

There is no charge for this service.

Born at Beyer Memorial Hospital in Ypsilanti, "Dwayne Richard" weighed in at 7 lbs. - 8 ozs. and measured 20 inches.
